The Cause of Hard Times. The New Jersy Democrats declare n their platform that "the industrial chant their melodies before his palace depression with which we have been morning, noon and night, for this afflicted during the past three years is man surely comes up out of great chargeable to legislation enacted by tribulations.' The flaming sword the Republican party." A similar asswung round and you were passing sertion has been made in other Demin when the great judge asked if you ocratic platforms, and is frequently could furnish a list of those delinseen in Democratic newspapers It quents; receiving it he said: "We is a gross misrepresentation, as every intelligent citizen knows; but, granting it to be true, the Democrats still emain responsible for the hard times. They were in power throughout the whole period of depression, with ample opportunity to protect all interests and to promote the general welfare and prosperity. When they discovered the alleged injurious effects of existing Republican legislation, why did they not repeal it, and give the country something better in the place of it? They were not obliged to sit still and let bad laws bring misfortune upon all classes of people. It was their right and they posessed the means to wipe out every statute that they believed to be detrimental or in any sense objectionable. Congress was in session most of the time, and its authority extended to every source of mischief. But nothing was done.

The Republican legislation to which the panic is now being attributed was allowed to stand, and the prevailing

As a maiter of fact, however, the country was never more prosperous than at the time when the Democratic party was restored to power. Republican legislation had put every form of busines and industry upon a profitable basis, and had preserved the public credit, maintained the him with the most hideous demons gold reserve, and kept a surplus in from that abyss of death and make the Treasury. It was the apprehens sion of the revgrsal of these conditions by the substitution of Democratic for Republican legislation that paralyzed trade reduced employment, and introduced general confusion and uncertainly where there had been generla began as soon as Republican influences ceased to control the policy of the government, and gradually grew worse as the fear increased that the Democrats would carry out their threats against the doctrins and processes under which the country has gained unprecedented prosperity. This fear was not alayed until a Republicad house was elected last fall, and a guarantee thus secured that no law could be bassed without the cons sent of an anti-Democratic majority in one branch of Congress. A VISION,

As Described By W. C. Gray, of Fordsville.

His Feelings Towards His Class-mates, &c.

[Class prophecy of the Literature lass of the Fordsville High School in the year 1894, by W. C. Gray.]

It was a dark snowy evening during the holidays that I was at home all alone, seated in a low armed rocking chair. The room was lighted by vening hours.

I was thinking of the many happy ys I had spent with my class-mates als that go to prove it that the occuand sorrowing that the day of our parting was so near.

The fire burned more low, the clock ked weaker and the crickets squeaked fainter. A solemn stillness hovred over all nature. The heaviness of my soul hung on my eyelids and

Presently low, sweet strains of music I seemed to hear. They grew louder and louder, at the same time strange light appeared to dawn, its equal in brilliancy and mildness I had never seen. In an instant I was breathing the soit perfumed atmosphere of an Opera house, and from he welcome motto that overhung the stage I discovered that the time was Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro. New year's evening 1915. I immediately recognized the singer as my old class-mate, Miss Grasie. She had ty years ago, but the changes had ony added to her beauty.

The soul inspiring music and the beauty of the occasion held me spell bound till the last sweet strains died lieve what the defendant's counse! believe is ruinous to the country I and darkness and silence reigned over mazoo. On entering that store whom should I see, but another one of my ass-mates, Mr. Ira Lee. He was busy compounding medicine behind a stand and failed to notice my appearance till I extended my hand. He gazed at me with a look of surprise and then declared he could hardly believed his eyes. We talked of our school days just twenty years behind; and also among other events up to that time. He told how he had worked early and late, earned for imself a neat little estate. A jolly wife, too, completed his home and no pore had he a desireto rome. It was plain enough for me to see that he was as happy as one could be. I congratulated him on his plans so well aid, and then the scene vanished in-

Frank s-Rowe Debate.

WHITESVITLE, Oct. 19. According to previous agreement, Hon. E. T. Franks and Hon. J. E. Rowe met in joint debate here to-day. Plenty of corn to shuck this year, The largest crowd that ever assembled in the history of Whitesville, greeted the speakers. Many ladies were present in the audience. Franks led off in a magnificent speech of an hour's length and Rowe followed, being allowed an hour and a quarter. Rev. L. R. Barnett will preach at Mr.Rowe's speech was a characteristic Democratic address, charging Southern Republicans with venality at the national conventions and asserting that all Republicans are idiots. He dwelt at length on negro equality, mixed schools and the separate coach act. Mr. Rowe is one of the many Democrats who have not learned that appeals to prejudice no longer move Kentuckians. Franks showed in his rejoinder that the constitution expressly prohibits mixed schools, that Grover Cleveland as Governor, signed the New York equality law, and that a similar law was enacted in Indiana by a Democratic legislature and signed by a Democratic Governor. Franks captured the crowd by his el convincing arguments and it is not ed with his speech. likely that Mr. Rowe will care to tackle him again soon.

Gen. Harrison's Literary Work. It is announced that ex-President Benjamin Harrison is engaged in writing a series of magazine articles for The Ladies' Home Journal, in which periodical they will begin in the December number. The series will be called "This Country of Ours," and will consist of ten articles and probably more. The papers are being written by General Harrison especially for women, to meet a growing, widespread desire on their part to intelligently understand the workings of our Government and the great National questions. It will be the aim of the articles to explain in the clear and concise style for which the ex-President is famous, just what the United States Government means; the origin and meaning of the Constitution; how laws are enacted and enforced; what the powers of the President and other officials are; what the judiciary system means; how our foreign relations are brought about and their meaning; how Congress and the Senate legislate; -in fact, a complete explanation of the Government told in a popular way. General Harrison writes the article from the standpoint of a citizen who understands his subject, They have no bearing on politics whatever. While directly indended for women. the articles will naturally have a much broader scope and likewise interest men, and especially young men.

FINLEY AT HARTFORD

Hon. Chas. Finley Greeted by a Large Audience.

Republicans and Democrats Alike Share in Cheering.

MAGNIFICENT SPEECH.

Hon. Chas. Finley, Republican nominee for Secretary of State, invaded Ohio county Wednesday and spoke to a large and enthusiastic audience at the Court House in the afternoon. Mr. Finley began by taking up the currency question, to which he devoted some time, thoroughly setting as compared with the free silver heresy of such men as Gen. Hardin. He next tackled the State House ing, seven of whom are the present Democratic nominees for the various State offices, and he gave them such drubbing as has not been heard in Hartford for many days. Mr. Finley's speech was one of the best of this campaign and was characterized by an honest, sincere desire to save the State from the further rule of the Ring. He told about how orman had closed the public records and had told Republicans they would have to pay to have the records copied when they wanted to see a portion of them, and how a young Republican from Louisville had been insulted by the Democratic Auditor.

Mr. Finley was introduced in a neat little speech by Hon. E.D.Guffy, Chairman of the Republican Execuive Committee. It will be remembered that Mr. Finley is the same man who introduced a bill in the last Legislature making every two weeks pay-day by large coroporations instead of four, which was voted down, and Ohio county's Representative cast his vote against the two week's bill.

Mr. Finley made a good impression on our people and all were well pleas-

THE HUMOR OF IT.

She was dressing very carefully and exquisitely for the Haverton's dance, and yet with a certain nervous Now and then she would stand still, lost in imaginings; then she would set her teeth, and dress frenziedly for a spell. Clearly it was not easy to rehearse a scene of reproach and scorn and put in judicious hairpins simultaneously. But she realized that a perfect confidence in her own appearance might materially influence her courage when the moment for the scene came, and that the moment should come to-night at the Haverton's dance she was fully and desperately deter-

Surely if ever man deserved punishment at the hands of woman that man was Ashby Eldon. He had behaved unforgivably.

She had met him for the first time at Nice, in the early part of this winter. She was there with an enervated aunt. He was there on mere house atmosphere of tiresome adulation in London, to bathe his soul in pure sunshine. He had talked culture and personalities in perfect proportions. He had been charming; had worn striped linen, a pointed beard, and a smile of fascinating fatigue; he had deluged her with expensive flowers. At first these flowers had come with a mere card. A little later the card was often inclosed in a sealed envelope, and covered with some suggestive little quotation from the French or German poets. Still later the flowers had come without a word, bearing their own message, and when he noted a spray or two in her dress he would perhaps steady his eyes on hers for a moment, hold her hand the fraction of a second too long for mere convention-oh, tell her in a thousand wordless ways that she was a charming woman in his eyes, and that he knew she knew it. And never a hint or sign of his engagement to that Miss Trevors! It was incomprehensible—unspeakable!

If he had not mentioned by chance that Lady Haverton was his aunt; if on her return from Nice she had not taken enormous trouble to cultivate Lady Haverton, and lead her talk on to Ashby Eldon, she might have dawdled in her fool's paradise to the the better for the change. day of his wedding announcement.

Well, the days of woman's "silent suffering" were over now, thank heaven! She had been reading a striking article on this theme in some magazine only last week. A that has been offered to the people woman was no longer a man's prey during her life. Guaranteed by. Z. -she was his equal, his rival; and to-night she would prove it. She would speak her mind honestlygrandly - without flinching. She foresaw every detail of the interview. He would be standing in the doorway of the ballroom when she arrived. She would pass him by. He would speak to her, and she would raise her eyebrows in calm surprise, answering in icy terms. But he should write his name on her programme, and when the dance came round she would ask to sit it out. Silently she would lead the way to an empty room—the little boudoir at the back of the conservatory. And then-!

How she would tear him with her weapons of scorn and disgust. She would make him feel like a cur.

The hottest words seemed insufficient punishment, when she thought what suffering he might have caused her! It was the merest chance that she had not lost her heart to himthe merest chance. Why did the face in the glass twitch when she said that? She would say it again, and say it out loud. It was the purest piece of luck that she had not fallen in love with Ashby Eldon. He had done his best. He was a brute. Yes, he was. She didn't care. He

$10.00 FOR EACH DOLLAR invested can be made by our Systematic Plan of Speculation

riginated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system. It is a well known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by systematic trading through Chicago brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to $50,000 to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand. It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparit-ively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invests through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading.

Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time. WRITE FOR CONVINCING PROOFS, also our Manual on successul speculation and our Daily Market Report, full of money-making pointers

Our Manual explains margin trading fully. Highest ret. erences in regard to our standing and success. For further information address
